ELECTION 2012

FACT SHEET: WEST VIRGINIA

Entering office amid an economic crisis, President Obama has consistently fought for the middle class, protecting children, and education. Here is just some of what has been achieved in West Virginia.

Strengthening the middle class

- The current tax system is NOT fair: In 2010, West Virginia corporations paid $366 million in state income taxes and individuals paid $1.4 billion — four times more. (Source: U.S. Census Bureau, State Government Tax Collections Summary Report: 2010)

- The Social Security payroll tax cut instituted by President Obama is a first step to leveling the playing field — $1,000 more in take-home pay for a middle class family earning $50,000 a year. (Source: U.S. Department of the Treasury)

- Over the last two decades, on average the income of the richest 20% of families in West Virginia rose by more than $30,000 while the income of the poorest 20% of families in West Virginia rose by $1,500 — 20 times more. Making college affordable

- President Obama has preserved Pell grants for more than 45,000 students in West Virginia. (Source: U.S. Department of Education)

- Last year alone, the American Opportunity Tax Credit introduced by President Obama helped make college tuition affordable for 33,000 families in West Virginia. (Source: U.S. Department of the Treasury, Office of Tax Analysis)
Supporting educators, modernizing schools

As a result of President Obama’s support for the Education Jobs Fund, signed into law in August 2010, West Virginia received $55 million that helped keep teachers in the classroom, limit increases in class size, and contain layoffs of counselors, classroom aides, and other education support professionals. The American Recovery and Reinvestment Act, signed into law by President Obama in February 2009, funded nearly 800 education jobs in West Virginia. (Source: U.S. Department of Education)

President Obama’s American Jobs Act, which the Republican Congress continues to block, would provide $163 million for education jobs, $161 million to modernize schools, and $15 million for community colleges in West Virginia. Improving health care

In 2011, West Virginia received $3.4 million for school-based health centers that provide screenings, conduct health promotion and disease prevention activities, and enable children with acute or chronic illnesses to attend school. The Affordable Care Act has brought peace of mind to nearly 1 million people in West Virginia — they no longer have to worry about lifetime limits. (Source: U.S. Department of Health and Human Services, The Health Care Law & You, healthcare.gov)

In 2011, more than 8,100 young adults in West Virginia could remain on their parents’ health plans until age 26 — and that number will grow in 2012. Before the Affordable Care Act, many college graduates and other young adults had no insurance. (Source: U.S. Department of Health and Human Services, The Health Care Law & You, healthcare.gov)
